BASEBALL CHAT. President Nick Young said after Satrday's game that he would have to return to Washington that night, and probably would not be able to see today's encounter. This will be regretted by many, for the President of the National League has kept his keen eyes upon the players in each of the Temple M Cup contests thus far, and such vigorous players as McGraw, Jennings, of special scrutiny.

When an "Evening World" reporter asked Mr. Young whether he did not think such rough tactics as those which have marked McGraw's playing which have marked McGraw's playing disciplining of the offender, if not his absolute expulsion, the kindly features of the mentor gleamed and he slowly said he did not want to commit himself now, but certainly the National pastime was not to be brutalized.
